BACK AND AGAIN

It was a partial sunny day with clouds scattered in the blue sky. The ~~soccer~~ soccer ground of Riverdale High school was filled with an eerie silence. The bleachers ~~were~~ were covered with students and the ground, with the players in green shirts, from the host team and in red shirts, from the Beverly High school team, competing to save their position in the state championship.

The two captains looked tense and were waiting for the whistle to blow, which happened to blow just then and the match began. Dylan, the captain of the host team went ahead with the ball, passing it to the vice captain. The one of the opponent caught the ball and ~~as~~ in the next five minutes, the red team had scored. The crowd grew tense and Dylan cursed under his breath and smacked Blake's head for missing the ball. The game continued and Blake kicked the ball into the net, making the score even. The crowd erupted in cheers and chanted Blake's name.

But the cheers died down when the red team scored another point and was in lead. The game went on and Dylan ~~was~~ ran after his opponent who had the ball. Clearly their formation was not work for them with 4 strikers and 2 defenders, but Dylan was too adamant to let them change. Suddenly, there was a commotion. Dylan had been tripped by the opponent and lay on the field with his leg twisted in an unearthly angle. He ~~was~~ immediately taken off the field, as he cried in pain. The ~~crowd~~ audience now wanted Tyler Miller, the ex-star striker to get on the field and soon Coach Klebber called him. Blake Sinclair was given the yellow armband and declared as the captain. Tyler warmed up a little, ~~since~~ ^{as} he hadn't played soccer ~~in~~ ^{for} two years since his twin sister Taylor ^{had} died of leukemia.

As the match restarted, Tyler all eyes were on Tyler who ran across the ground, passing ^{by} the opponents and took the ball, and goal! The crowd erupted in a loud roar, ~~of~~ praising Tyler. They had got their star striker back! As the game half-time approached, Tyler asked Blake to change the formation with 2 strikers and 4 defenders, just like old times when ~~he~~ ^{he} Tyler had been the captain. Blake's eyes lit up and they changed the formation. The red team was confused with the new change but the game continued and Tyler scored again, winning the match! The audience chanted his name as Blake crushed Tyler in ^a ~~big~~ hug! ~~several~~

8. (a) The frog is the speaker of the above lines. ✓ ↓

(b) 'he' refers to the frog and the nightingale. ✓ ↓

(c) The nightingale must give the audience something fresh, pleasant and sharper notes of her song to make them happy, so that they can have 'better billings'. ✓ ↓

(d) The speaker, - the frog is cruel, selfish, commanding and conniving. He does not care about the best health of the nightingale, but just wants to exploit the situation. ✓ ↓

89. (a) Michael's father was fascinated by computers since he had a lot of computer-related stuff such as 1.2 MHz processor, CD-ROM, a large ~~screen~~ screen, etcetera already and he too with a large number of games too. He had taught his son, how to use it at an early age and even took him to a computer fair where they bought a glove, a vision and psycho-driven games.

(b) Louisa Mebbin had a "protective elder sister" attitude towards money since wherever money was involved, Louisa never failed to protect them from getting spent worthlessly, with no respect to nationality or denomination. She was very materialistic. Even when she had been a paid companion to Mrs. Packletide, she suggested her to kill the tiger before it ~~ate~~^{ate} the goat so that they did not have to pay for the goat, which was an extra bait. She cared about money just like a girl protects her ~~so~~ younger sister.

(c) Shakespeare had written his Sonnet 55, Not Marble, nor the Guided monuments in the memory of his friends.
He had faith in his poetry which would brave the savages of ~~the~~ time and immortalize his friend.

When Shakespeare's friend would rise on the Day of Judgement, he ~~would~~ ^{will} realize that no one has forgotten him. Even the many next ~~for~~ generations after him have remembered him and he had been immortalized.

(e) Helen was a ghost and we can not expect a ghost to be made of material. She ~~is~~ appeared in the form of gas, with her boots appearing first and soon the affection spreaded to reveal her entire torso.
Her voice ^{could} ~~can~~ rather be heard before she ^{came} ~~turned~~ into sight.
Since ~~the~~ ~~as~~ the affection of her existence ~~can~~ spreaded slowly through her body, she appeared in bits and pieces.
John Hallock could even see directly through her body.

A MENTOR'S WORDS.

When Sitalakanto Ray, better known as Patol Babu, used to ~~perform~~ perform on stage in ~~a~~ his ^{earlier} young days, he was quite popular. His mentor, Mr. Gogon Pakrashi had once advised him ~~a~~ not to consider any role below his dignity and give his best performance everytime. He had told him - "Every dialogue is like a fruit in a tree and it is the ~~ab~~ acting of the actor which brings out the ~~a~~ true meaning of the dialogue."

Patol Babu had ~~left his~~ quit his acting career years ago and when a ~~non~~ nonentity like him was offered a role in a film, he was surprised. ~~the~~ Upon reaching the set of the film, he enquired about his lines and much to his dismay, it was a monosyllabic word, "Oh!" He was disappointed, but remembered the advice of his mentor. He practiced his dialogue and realized that ~~a~~ one word could be expressed in so many ways. He decided to show his talent and rehearsed his actions and expressions for the scene. He even suggested to carry a newspaper at the time of collision and calculated the timing and his foot steps.

His timing was so perfect that the lead actor, Chanchal Kumar, nearly "passed out." He was very much satisfied with his performance and left without getting paid. This shows he was not at all materialistic. The ~~cost~~ valuable words of his mentor contributed in changing his negative emotions. 11/14

ANNE'S FATHER

11. (a) Anne's father, Mr. Otto Frank was a wealthy person who gave his children a comfortable life. He had shifted from Germany to Holland due to Hitler's rule and worked in ~~Opt~~ Dutch ~~Opt~~ ~~Opt~~ company. He was a ~~gent~~ Jew, and had to go into hiding to flee the atrocities of Germans.

He had planned the escape much soon and immediately moved into hiding when Margot got a call-up notice. He cared for his family a lot. Also, he was an understanding father since he told Anne about the possibility of leaving their house, beforehand so that she could be ready and prepared.

He was deeply loved by his family, and was called Pim. He took care of Anne in the Secret Annex too, he provided her comfort during heavy bombings and gun fires and acted as a pacifier between Anne and her mother.

He defended his daughter when Mrs. van Daan called Anne, a spoilt brat for not eating certain dishes.

He advised Anne to ask ~~the~~ Dr. Dussell once more about the table in their room and when the arrogant man refused twice, he came to his daughter's rescue. He took care of the fact that children got food before. He helped his daughters with their lessons and encouraged them to read more books. Yet, he ~~was~~ appeared to be drifting away from Anne in the later part of their stay in the Annex. He scolded ~~from~~ Anne without knowing the issue when she was looking into Margot's book and Margot was at fault.

As a protective father, he suggested Anne to not go upstairs to Peter's room and asked her to be careful. He understood her feelings for the boy and did not interfere much. He even talked to Peter about it and Peter too admired Anne's father.

According to Anne, her father could not read her heart and did not help her in time of a breakdown.

But as a whole, we get a positive picture of Otto Frank from Anne's diary who is caring, sensible, pacifying and understanding father to his daughters. When the inmates of Annex were caught and deported to camps, he was the only one to survive and spent his life spreading the message of his daughter, about life and its hardships.
